

The materials attached here were prepared as a part of the process of bidding for the 2026 FIFA World Cup™. They represent a comprehensive and detailed examination of the current state of human rights in the United States and Mexico, and strategies to ensure human rights are protected. Since then, the standards for and state of human rights have only improved in both countries. As such, we feel confident that these documents are still relevant, and we remain fully committed to protection against human rights abuses in both of our countries, both in general and as it relates to the preparation for and execution of the 2027 FIFA Women's World Cup™.
